Overview

Adam has been representing clients in criminal proceeding for over 15 years. During that period Adam has developed a wealth of trial experience in dealing with serious criminal matters including murder, large scale drugs conspiracies, serious violent crime and serious sexual assaults.

Adam is regularly led in high profile criminal cases, which often involve clients who are linked to serious organised crime. In the past year Adam has been led in 4 seprate murder trials.

Adam has also represented a number of clients working in the public sector who have been subject to serious criminal investigations for a range of allegations arising out of each client's respective employment. This led to Adam defending before the GMC.

Moreover, he has corresponding experience in representing clients compelled to attend Inquest hearings before the Coroner's Court as Interested Persons.

Adam having previously been a solicitor prides himself on being able to develop excellent client relationships.
