Employment

Simon practises mainly in employment and equality law, and in complementary areas within the fields of regulatory and professional discipline, public, commercial and sports law. He has an outstanding employment practice for a barrister of his call and has developed a strong reputation for excellent client service.

Simon was appointed Junior Counsel to the Crown in 2015 on the Attorney General's regional civil panel for a period of five years and reappointed in 2020. As such, in addition to his broader practice, he regularly advises and represents major government departments and ministers on employment and equality law matters. He also has substantial experience working with local authorities and with business more generally.

He frequently acts for both respondents and claimants in complex, multi-day employment tribunals. He has acted, as sole counsel, in appeal cases in the Employment Appeal Tribunal and the Court of Appeal, and been involved in one case which touched the Supreme Court. He has substantial experience advising and representing across the full range of typical employment issues: unfair and wrongful dismissal, all types of discrimination, whistleblowing and victimisation, unlawful deductions, employment status, redundancy, TUPE, etc. A selection of some recent work is presented further below.

Simon is able to bring a more informed and well-balanced perspective to his employment practice because of his wider work. He continues to practise in complementary areas of public, regulatory, sports and commercial law. He sits in various judicial roles, including a number of significant professional regulatory positions (within business, healthcare, and sport). He is a Non-Executive Director for an NHS trust and a regional football association, and an independent board member of the ASDA Foundation. Before graduating with a 1st class degree from Cambridge, he worked in one of the Prime Minister's units, as a management consultant and in an executive role. This wider experience is particularly useful within the employment law context and has helped Simon to develop a reputation for understanding the practical as well as the legal context.
